

Sigh

Sent to: SMH/editor (letters@smh.com.au)

6 June 2016

Still weeks to go, and no sign that the “Coles and Woolworth” of Australian politics will save billions of dollars with the closure asylum seeker concentration camps and permission for all refugees and asylum seekers to work instead of forced dependency on 89% of Newstart. It reduces the budget deficit, and saves the souls and sanity of tortured victims, including their voting advocates.

Frederika E Steen AM